

Exams: Exams must be taken on the scheduled date. The only exceptions will be for extenuating circumstances (i.e. death in the family, hospitalization, etc.) when I am notified at least 24 hours in advance.

Note: lab grade will be made up of scores from lab exercises PLUS scores from 2 to 3 quizzes over lab material. Lab quizzes will be given during LECTURE class at times to be determined (they will be announced at least 1 week prior to the quiz)

Although there are two lab sections associated with this class, PLEASE don't play "musical lab periods". That is, unless you have permission in advance from the Teaching Assistants, please only attend the lab section that you are enrolled in. The lab rooms have very limited seating capacity, and at this time every lab section is full.

Holidays: Sept. 4th, Labor Day; Nov. 22nd, Thanksgiving Break

There may be times that I will be out of town and there will be a sub to teach class or proctor exams.

Attendance: You are expected to attend every lecture, however, attendance will not be taken. It is for your own benefit to attend classes, not all material on exams will be directly on the powerpoint slides, you should plan on showing up and taking notes. In addition, random quizzes will be given throughout the semester (5% of your grade); you will not be allowed to make these up.

WEB PAGE: This course has a web page located at: <https://learn.ou.edu> (log on using your 4+4). There are other websites I have linked to the website site that are filled with information about meteorology. They are put there for you to look at as you desire. All grades will be posted on this class website and if you have any questions about what has been posted contact me immediately.

If you have any questions about any of the material presented, let me know by asking a question in class, during office hours or by email.
